Women in a Frenzy of Cheering Over Mention of Child Labor Laws.

CHICAGO, June 3.-In the burry of the Convention's opening session Chairman Harding went away and left the band blowing its lungs out. It might have played all night and atill been at it when the Convention opened this morning if Prof. Well hadn't sent a frantic phone call to the platform for permission to quit, and being granted the same by an chliging newspaper reporter standing

It reminded him of a song we used to sing when he was a boy, he said: There's a name that's never spoken There's a parent's heart that's broken. There's a picture that is turned against the wall."

Official parliamentarian William 8 Rennet of the Republican Convention, a New Yorker, has a fine job. He and his strappers worked far into the early hours of Wednesday morning and far into the hours of this morning typewriting everything the chairman of the convention had to eav and the replies of the delegates he was to say it to. Then during the proceedings Bennet stands at the chairman's elbow and prompts him on what to say, points out the delegates he is to recognize and checks up on all of them with his copy of the proceedings to see that they all sny the "Dearest Marian: I am awfully disappointed in you, Marian, for I thought you cared quite a little for me. That night I was up to see you though I found out different, and I sure am disappointed. However, I haven't given up hopes, and am going to try to bring you around to it after a white."

It was the next December that an ominous note began to appear in Orpet's communications. An extract from a letter dated Dec. 6 reads: "Put off going to the doctor as long
